INTRODUCING - ANTON CAVALLI

Hello and thank you for taking the time to review my media kit. If you haven't yet visited my website, www.antoncavalli.com, I invite you to do so for a deeper understanding of my background and life journey. For the purpose of this media kit, I will keep things focused and relevant. .

I am not your run of the mill… actually, that covers it: "I am not your run of the mill." I am a big personality in a not so tall body, with a huge heart and a crazy sense of humour. My disabilities, chronic illnesses and the severe hardships I've faced, have shaped me for the better. I learned early on that how we process and respond to life's challenges is an individual choice. I am very grateful to be alive and I find even greater fulfilment in sharing my story and experiences with audiences worldwide.

I know the word "transgender" stands out like a sore thumb. I approach this part of my life in a practical and grounded way, including my decision to transition as an adult. Over the years, I've spoken openly about my experience with medical professionals, educators, media, politicians and diverse audiences. I believe these conversations are important and I engage in them openly and respectfully. I hold my own individual views on related matters and am always happy to provide more information if you'd like to explore the topic more.

That said, this is just one aspect of who I am. and whilst I wouldn't wish the journey on anyone, I'm grateful for the insight and unique perspective it has given me.

Facing lifes challenges has shown me resilience along with compassion and empathy for others. These powerful qualities are what drives me to do what I do.

As the first patient advocate and transgender person ever to get a poster presentation (at the World Congress of Integrated Medicine and Health), this is a world first and needs to be applauded. You are amazing and the response you had shows we need more patients like you at these congresses. - Dr J. Schloss
